BASQUES DIG IN AT LAST STAND

Heavy Fighting Reported as Rebel Columns Move Steadily Nearer to Bilbao

BATTLE FOR PAVED ROAD Highway Along Biscayan Bay Leads Straight to Pittsburgh of Spain

By The Associated Press
HEAVY FIGHTING was reported from the front lines at noon today as the Basque and government troops were trying to keep Gen. Emilio Mola's insurgents from marching along the level paved highway to Bilbao.

The Basque troops captured two flag poles of the Italian 17th division and brought back three Italian officers and deserters to the government lines.

Officials admitted however that the Basques were in retreat on other front where three companies of the insurgent forces are cutting in their march to Bilbao.

Mola's troops occupied several of the Basque sacred sites of the Baque at 11:15 a. m. today.

Juan Antonio Aguirre, president of the Basque autonomous republic, called on God and his people to witness the truth of his cause.

3 CONVICTS KILLED IN ATTEMPTED BREAK

Fourth Dying After Guard Turns Machine Gun on Speeding Truck

By The Associated Press
MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., April 29.—Three inmates of the state prison here were killed and a fourth critically injured in an attempt to escape today.

An attack of the office of Warden C. F. McClintock said guards "no the prisoner as they attempted to escape over the walls."

Information was not available as to whether others in the prison colony of 1,800 men were involved in the attempted break.

Captain C. M. Stone, deputy warden, said:

Three prisoners are dead and another is dying as a result of a delivery attempt at the penitentiary wagon gate. Four convicts hopped on a prison truck as it was leaving the yard overpowered the driver and drove the truck full-speed out of the first gate.

The driver lost control of the truck and it wrecked against a large scale near the outer gate.

One of the guards on the wall near the gate saw the attempted break and opened fire with a machine gun after sounding a general alarm.

GROUP ROUNDED UP IN RAID YESTERDAY RELEASED ON BOND

Arraignments Fixed for Friday; Details of How Chief Marks and Men Made Arrests.

TEN PERSONS, including seven men and three women, arrested by police yesterday in a raid on the headquarters of an alleged numbers racket were released on bond today.

Charges against the 10 were to be filed in municipal court either this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

Chief Marks said all were released last night with their appearance set for Friday at 9 a. m. in municipal court. Bonds were set at $25 for men and $10 for the women. The high figure was set for S. W. (Slim) Truman.

The 10 were arrested over a period of more than two hours when police led by Chief Marks staged a "raid-down" raid at 180 Park boulevard.

Arriving at the house, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Weichold at 12:25 p. m. yesterday the police waited until alleged numbers writers arrived to make their daily reports and turn in their money.

How Raid Was Conducted
Dressed in plain clothes the five officers who took possession of the residence found no one at home but Mrs. Weichold when they knocked at the door and entered.

Then they took over the home and began their sit-down wait.

Less than a half hour later the first alleged writer appeared. She was Miss Lavelle, colored. As she stepped into the kitchen door at the rear of the house police greeted her and hustled her to the basement where her report, an envelope containing the receipts of her day's sale, and the numbers slugs were taken into possession.

G. W. Jackson of Mt. Carmel was the next to arrive. Chief Marks said he was sent through the same procedure.

The third to reach the house was Miss Anna Weichold, the daughter of the residents of the Park boulevard house. Chief Marks said Miss Weichold was driven to the house by S. W. Truman who left after she had given her report.

Chief Marks said a large cardboard box Chief Marks said containing slugs from number books and bills and coins in the amount of $1,127.71.

After Miss Weichold alighted from the automobile and before she entered the house two men approached and handed her packages which Chief Marks said were in a rubber report envelopes. These were found in the cardboard box which she carried into the house.

Which Maintained
During their wait at the house the police were watching out for any sign of trouble from the basement and from the street. They were unable to make any arrests on the outside because they did not want to leave their posts until all writers had made their reports.

As each writer arrived he was placed under arrest and relieved of his report. There was no resistance on the part of any since they apparently realized the nature of their reception the chief said.

Mistaken Identity
The only one to offer any objection to the reception was Weichold, who apparently did not recognize the officer at the door and thought of a holdup, the chief said. In a moment he was surrounded by officers and obeyed instructions without protest.

About 2:30 o'clock the first contingent of writers was taken to police headquarters and booked. Weichold was the last to be brought in. He was allowed to remain at the house until all the officers had left in order that he might look up.

The 10 arrested gave their names as Harold, Smith of 443 South Prospect street; C. J. Bodie of 302 North State street; E. C. Cook of 771 Woodrow avenue; George Davis, colored, of 534 Jefferson street; Miss Lavelle, colored; Mr. and Mrs. Weichold and their daughter Anna of 180 Park boulevard; S. W. Truman was arrested by other officers on West Center street shortly after this.

With the exception of Truman all were released last night on bonds of $25. Truman's bond was set at $250. Cash bonds were deposited by Weichold and Truman for all Chief Marks said.

Police took a total of $2,975.95 at the Weichold residence as they staged the raid. This is in addition to a considerable sum found on several writers when they were booked at police headquarters yesterday afternoon.

How Game Is Figured
Numbers writers, based on figures in the 100 daily sales of slugs and bonds on the New York stock market, has flourished in Marion for several years.

It is a game of chance in which the numbers writer attempts to guess certain numbers which will appear in the report on total stock and bond sales. Customers may bet on a number on a bet of $1. The customer has a 100 to 1 chance of winning the right number. A bet of $100 will win $10,000.

DENHARDT'S APPEAL TO DROP CASE FAILS

Judge Refuses To Dismiss Charges; Defendant To Tell His Own Story.

By The Associated Press
NEW CASTLE, Ky., April 29.—Circuit Judge Charles C. Marshall refused to dismiss murder charges against Brig. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt today, leaving the portly defendant and his counsel to present their side of the case to the jury.

The Commonwealth slowed its case late yesterday and after "sleeping over" the defense presented its case in nearly a week of circumstantial evidence and scientific tests, the judge overruled the motion this morning.

The 41-year-old soldier-politician was expected to tell the jury in his own words today the story of the shooting of Yerna Gair.

On the night of the shooting, 39-year-old Denhardt was found dead last night after an automobile ride.

THIS WILL SURPRISE A LOT OF CAR OWNERS

If you haven't been buying Goodyear tires because you thought you couldn't afford the best, here's something that will surprise you:

The cheapest thing on your car is the best tires you can buy. Operating records of large fleet owners show that gasoline actually costs 5 times as much per mile as a full set of Goodyears—other routine expense 2 to 4 times as much!

But more important than economy is the greater security Goodyears give you. The greater grip of center traction! The quicker-stopping All-Weather type tread with its life-saving margin of safety! The greater blowout protection of patented Supertwin Cord in every ply!

A Goodyear in every price class
Goodyear offers you these time-proved features in tires of several different price classes—each the top quality tire for the money. The price difference is just a matter of how much mileage you want to buy. So why gamble on unknown tires when Goodyears—the world's first-choice—cost less than anything else on your car?

THURSDAY, APRIL 29, 1937

Guesing.

Factory employment has reached 1929 levels, according to estimates of several public and private organizations, one of them the federal department of labor.

It is not surprising, therefore, to hear the National Association of Manufacturers demanding an unemployment census. The manufacturers, now that they're sure they can't be made the goats for continued unemployment, can look on counting noses, without any misgivings.

Unfortunately, other groups must still have misgivings. Nothing else explains why the Roosevelt administration remains silent about an unemployment census. Without trying to guess what the groups may be, or why they're jittery, one finds it hard to believe they aren't seeing spooks.

An unemployment census would prove, if it could prove anything, that it's not crooked politicians, foremen, chiselers, social workers, labor saving machinery, starvation wages or any one of a dozen other things which are responsible for continued unemployment. If handled right, the census would take away from demagogues once and for all these helpless whipping boys which they have been beating up on at a time to add to the general confusion, and prove conclusively that unemployment is a combination of all these things and many more.

Continuing to administer relief without reliable statistics is like refusing to look through a telescope at the stars for fear there might be more of them than someone guessed there were.

Ready To Pounce.

One of the rules of survival in a land of taxenets is to remain as inconspicuous as possible, on the theory that the hungry monster will gobble up everything in sight before looking around in obscure places.

The theory's all right. Take auto trailers, for instance. As long as the gasoline demand continued to dart here and there unobtrusively, he scarcely was noticed. When he grew bold and vain and started to call attention to himself, he challenged the taxenets to do something about him.

All this is brought to mind by information from a couple associations of public jobholders that their experts are delving in to the question of taxing trailers. It would be a pity to tell about some of the things being considered; it might spoil the summer for someone with a brand new trailer and high hopes. But it's plain that the happy, carefree days are over; the taxenets have bared their teeth and are ready to pounce on America's homegrown cypresses almost before the novelty of their idea had been worn off.

A Bigger Pie.

This quotation from a speech made a few days ago is much better than any editorial which could be written about it:

"Don't let alarmists convince you that there is going to be any permanent conflict with embattled labor on one side and management stubbornly entrenched on the other side. The truth is that the overwhelming majority of employees in this country not only feel friendly toward its employers, but is becoming increasingly aware of management's intentions and efforts in the direction of improved industrial relations. Certainly we would like very much to raise wages and dividends, lower prices still further, pay more for raw materials and services, and meet all the demands of the taxation programs. But how can this be done? A pie has only so many portions. While waiting for the renaissance of a Solomon, it may be well to continue striving to give all elements a fair division of the industrial pie and to join minds over the conference table on ways and means of baking a bigger pie."

The speaker is Colby M. Chester, president of General Foods Corp., former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, an officer of many corporations a successful lawyer and, judged by the usual standards, a conservative. He was speaking to delegates at the convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Now what could a labor agitator do about a speech like that?

The New Realism.

The new realism in diplomacy permits no attention to idealism and the brotherhood of man. Everybody recognizes only one law—survival.

In Europe survival means the power to handle Germany in event of the war which its dictator is preparing to make.

Germany's natural enemy is France. The French frontier now is protected by the most formidable military works ever built. But Germany could enter France through

Price Fixing in The Making

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1937, by The Marion Star

WASHINGTON, April 29—The Roosevelt administration is paving the way for the passage of a law by Congress giving the federal trade commission and similar tribunals a specialized field the power of price control.

Within the last 24 hours, the White House has issued several statements which, when placed together, can only mean one thing—federal control of prices in basic commodities and possibly in by-products will be a fact.

On the surface it might seem as if there was a conflict or inconsistency between President Roosevelt's espousal of the Guffey-Vinson law, which he signed one day this week, and his disclosure the next day of a letter sent him by Attorney General Cummings going for competition and a reinforcement of the anti-trust laws. Likewise, there may seem to be a contradiction between the legalized monopoly and price-fixing granted to coal producers under the Guffey law and the President's notification to house and senate leaders that he wants action held up on the Miller-Tydings bill which would enable prices of certain articles to be maintained when resold by manufacturers through dealers and other outlets.

The truth is the whole thing pivots to gether, symmetrically. Mr. Roosevelt is against price-fixing when private companies do it, but he is for it when the government has a control or supervision, as in the Guffey coal bill.

William in Court

By MARJORIE MURPHY

NEW YORK, April 29.—One of the most dramatic legal battles of today hinges, oddly enough, on the question of where the late Col. Edward H. R. Green was a resident in the eyes of the law.

Involved in the struggle over his estate, estimated at from $40,000,000 to $100,000,000, are two women, his sister, Mrs. Hetty Wilks, 65, and his widow, Mrs. Mabel Green.

Because of the fact that the son of the late Col. Green, once the world's richest woman, owned property and maintained several residences, he is claimed as a resident in Texas, New York, Florida and Massachusetts, each of which is eager to share in the taxes which will be paid by his estate.

It is this controversy over which state has proper jurisdiction in the legal tangle over his fortune that must be solved before the law is moved for deciding whether his sister or widow will inherit.

Mrs. Wilks claims her brother's property rests on a will which he made out in 1908 leaving his fortune to his mother, Hetty or, in event of his death, to his sister. This document was filed for probate by Mrs. Wilks in surrogate court of Essex county where Lake Placid, N. Y., is located. It was here that Colonel Ned died last June at the age of 67.

Legal counsel for Widow Green contends that this will was not valid. To arguments of Mrs. Wilks' attorneys that Mrs. Green had waived her dower rights when she signed an agreement by which she was to receive $1,500 a month for life, the legal representatives of Mrs. Green replied that this agreement was invalid because it was not properly executed.

Back of all this legal controversy, which booms as "the judicial battle of the century," is a colorful story which goes back to the days of New England whaling and clipper ships—to the time when the Green ancestors founded the fortune which Hetty so capably increased.

Hetty Piled Up Millions
When Hetty died in 1910 she had built up the family fortune to nearly $30,000,000 through her shrewd manipulations in Wall Street and real estate transactions. Her career was characterized by a notorious stinginess and a highland manner of dealing with both her children and her business associates.

Ned was kept under his mother's firm thumb until the age of 21 when she shipped him off to Texas to take over a bankrupt railroad which she had acquired. Establishing his headquarters at Terrell, Tex., Ned proved himself his mother's son by "building up the road into one of the model lines in the state. His other ventures prospered in like manner, and the late colonel, whose title was an honorary one bestowed upon him by the state of Texas, eventually branched into many fields of finance.

It was not until 1917, one year after his mother's death, that Green married, taking as his wife one of his close friends, Mabel Hawlow. His time between his marriage and death was divided between a huge mansion at South Dartmouth, Mass., a palatial New York penthouse and an imposing estate on Star Island near Miami Beach, Fla.

Belgium—It did that once—or through Switzerland.

Belgium is worried, with good reason. The Nazi swastika has frightened it into extensive military preparation. Why then should Belgium ask for and get its pre-war status of neutrality, which entails release from the Locarno treaty? Under the terms of that treaty, Belgium would have been protected against invasion.

It's simple. Neither France or Great Britain will let Germany invade Belgium without going to war. Belgium knows that. It's part of the new realism. No treaty is necessary to insure aid for the Belgians if and when they need it. So, why have a treaty which binds Belgium to governments that now are clearly opposed to the German government and which constitutes, therefore, an additional advantage to the only government which Belgium fears?

The new realism marches on. Secure, land—even Switzerland—must consider the possibility of its terror. Becoming a hot battleground.

MISSED REAL TEST

Job had puzler but he never had a windshield wiper to fail him in a down-pour of rain—Greensboro Herald-Journal

Mr. Roosevelt is against monopoly which is alleged to lead to collusion in price-fixing in basic industries like steel, but he favors government control of prices through a commission or tribunal specializing in that subject.

When the attorney general says in his letter that the anti-trust laws need revision, he points out that "the machinery of the courts is not geared to the handling of the social and economic factors necessarily involved, and many persons and communities seriously affected cannot be parties to a court proceeding under the anti-trust laws."

So it might also be argued about the Guffey act that persons and communities affected and social and economic factors may be involved and yet not get protection under the Guffey act. Still, the new deal will answer, that's the function of the consumers' council and the national bituminous coal commission itself.

The attorney general's letter was written undoubtedly for the purpose of expressing a point of view desired by the President himself. It is clear by now that anything formal come from a cabinet officer that has suspected of having been approved in advance by the White House, so that in effect the letter is considered as Mr. Roosevelt's own viewpoint.

The late announcement, therefore, asking for a re-statement of the anti-trust laws, on the ground that they are not adequate, is taken to mean that the administration really wants to get new powers to deal broadly with industry. Instead of being content to put into the Guffey law and into other measures a provision suspending the anti-trust laws, something that simply puts up men like Senator Borah and other true liberals who do not believe in the fascist philosophy of price-fixing now being embraced by the administration, the plan is to revise the entire anti-trust law structure. The idea is to outlaw monopoly and to make free competition as the purpose, but yet give the federal government certain power over price control which amounts to legalizing the existing producers in groups resembling European cartels, now Americanized under the word "cartel" such as the NRA started.

The Miller-Tydings bill and the fact that 19 states have laws on resale price maintenance is a disturbing influence in the administration's general plan; hence the move to squelch it. The administration may take up the resale price maintenance idea or the so-called "loss leader" in another form, but it is moving slowly till it gets behind general powers. The Robinson-Patman act is an example of the confusion which the administration has encountered in going at the problem of trying to regulate business piecemeal. What is desired by the President undoubtedly is price control by government commission. The need for this has been emphasized recently by members of his official family, including Governor B. O. Davis of the federal reserve board, who sees it as necessary to prevent inflation and a boom.

For the moment, the department of justice and the federal trade commission are being asked to study these questions, but the truth is the administration wants to wait till the supreme court of the United States is properly packed with judges of its own choosing so that the next move to control all business will not be upset by a supreme court decision. Hence, between now and the time the present controversy over the size of the court is settled, methods of imposing price control will be studied.

Meanwhile, the administration wants no interference by the passage of fragments of legislation touching on miscellaneous phases of the matter when the whole business structure is due to undergo a surgical operation at its hands to regulate prices, and of course, ultimately profits. As the saying might well be, "German and Italian papers please copy," for it means the death sentence to the system of free competition as it has been known in America for 150 years.

Cautious Cordell

This is another of a series of Associated Press stories describing press conferences of leading Washington figures.

By EDDY GILMORE

WASHINGTON, April 29—The daily press conferences of Secretary of State Cordell Hull pack enough unwritten dogmas to trip a super diplomat.

They are held over a table surrounded by chairs—yet no one sits down.

What the secretary says is what makes the news—yet you can't quote him unless a special exception is made.

His answers are vitally important to foreign correspondents present from the corners of the world—but few ever ask him questions.

The secretary stands at one end of the table, his hands folded over the back of a chair. The reporters line up behind the other chairs and fire their inquiries.

If the secretary should say—"I feel (this spring day)—custom commands that the remark be recorded to the world as—'Secretary Hull said he felt fine this spring day. Direct quotation is forbidden."

There are good reasons. When you're speaking for the state department, you're dancing on diplomatic dynamite. A misplaced comma can start an international incident.

The secretary—tall and the model of dignity—is the personification of the department. He has a rare gift of answering questions without saying "yes" or "no."

Capital story tellers illustrate this quality with an old crackerbox favorite. They apply the tale to Mr. Hull traveling by train across his native Tennessee, and what is more, contend it's true.

"That's a fine flock of sheep, isn't it?" said a stranger pointing out of the window and trying to strike up a conversation.

"That's true," Mr. Hull is reported to have replied, "if they are not goats."

"They've just been sheared, haven't they?" persisted the man.

Rumor has it the cautious official replied:

They have been—on this side."

The foundation of the educational system of Ohio was really laid on April 29, 1937, when a number of the early settlers at Marietta met to consider measures for promoting the education of youth.

A committee was appointed to plan a house for religious and educational purposes, estimate expenses, recommend a site. On this committee, which established the Marietta academy, said to have been the first institution of its kind in what is now Ohio were Gen. Rufus Putnam, Paul Fanning Griffin, Green, J. R. A Grave Situation

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 29—A rather grave unpleasantness of sorts developed over the selection of a secretary to the federal communications commission. The job is a delicious political plum, paying $7,500 a year.

Several well-backed candidates reached for it, including men of the caliber of John Carson, who was more-than-secretary to the late Senator Couzens. They had to be eliminated first. It was quite a task.

The Carson candidacy was handled by his appointment to the better job of consumers' council of the bituminous coal commission.

The others were taken care of in other ways.

The road was finally cleared for Jim Farley's candidacy. Robert I. Berger, radio director of the Democratic national committee, arranged for Mr. Berger were completed. He even went down and introduced himself around the commission and everyone knew he was to be the man, Mr. Farley's man.

Just as everything was all set, the commission received an unexpected telephone call from the White House. Jimmy Roosevelt son and secretary, was on the wire. His advice was substantially this:

Papa wants you to hold up that Berger appointment. He has another man in mind.

Paternalism
This was upsetting to Chairman Pratt of the commission. He did not see how it could be done. Berger's selection was about to be announced. Orders had come from Farley. If Jimmy wanted to countermand Big Jim's orders, he had better get in touch with Big Jim.

Mr. Farley was out campaigning for supreme court packing at the moment and could not be reached, but Jimmy got Farley's secretary, Bill Bray, on the telephone. Jimmy told Bill also that the Berger appointment was out, that papa wanted another fellow.

Bill said, whose there, wait a minute. This is beyond my jurisdiction. If Mr. Farley's man is out, you had better get in touch with Mr. Farley. That left matters in a very unsatisfactory state.

Persistence
Chairman Pratt decided to go over to see Jimmy. He went into the White House, walking past Pershing Hall, did not realize how far this Berger thing had gone. It was too late now to hold it up. Such action would entail embarrassment.

Jimmy was adamant. Papa said the appointment must be held up and they would just have to wait until they could get hold of Farley.

Furthermore, papa said (and this is what should have convinced Mr. Pratt or any other reasonable man of the seriousness of the situation)—papa said the Iowa delegation in the house was going to vote for his supreme court program and, therefore, their candidate for the job must be taken care of.

That's the way it goes.

Paradox
Economy is developing into one of those great reforms which everyone is for—for the other fellow.

Many a congressman is complaining that his mail on the budget and relief expenditures is a puzzle. The legislators get letters one day from business organizations including Chambers of Commerce, asking support for public buildings in their locality, protesting against abolition of some federal offices, etc.

The very next day they get letters from the same or similar groups of well-grounded people demanding that the country be saved from inflation by rigid economy.

An Iowa congressman received a letter from a man on relief strongly endorsing economy. But he wound up the letter by saying he needed more money and wanted the congressman to help him get it out of the federal government.

Counting
The august senate is never like that, or almost never. Leading senators took their courage in hand the other day and squeezed $3,000,000 out of the bill making appropriations for the commerce, state labor and justice departments.

They were quite proud of themselves and did considerable bragging about their handiwork. Several senators actually arose and congratulated themselves publicly.

No one pointed out that, while the senate did cut the bill $3,000,000 under the budget, it granted the bureau of air commerce a $4,000,000 contract authorization, which was not counted in the totals.

If this amount had been counted, and it should have been, practically speaking, because the amount will be spent, then their proud savings was a minus $1,000,000 instead of plus $3,000,000. (Copyright, 1937, by Paul Mallon)

Amelia's "Perfect" Husband

By O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 29—Amelia Earhart seems to have acquired the perfect type of husband for a daring aviatrice. In George Palmer Putnam. He is a book publisher who, no matter his feelings expresses a commendable calm over her hazardous exploits. He never opposes.

Every plan is presented to him before taking form and he is always in hearty accord. He has perfect confidence in her ability at the controls and while not an active flyer has acquired much technical knowledge. Also he has made several long flights.

On her ocean hops he accompanies her to her plane and bids goodbye as casually as though she was just off for New Rochelle for the evening. Then he remains in seclusion, without a wink of sleep, until he receives word of her safe arrival.

Their marriage, despite the diversity of their callings, has been singularly ideal. They dine, lunch and attend the theater together frequently. I have been told that after her world flight, interrupted by a crack up, she may give up flying for all time because her husband has been such a good sport about it.

There were a shaky few days recently when it looked as though the historic New Amsterdam theater, long considered an ace playhouse, might go over to burlesque and the strip act along the 42nd street Burlesque Belt. The papers were about to be signed when something happened which probably saved A. I. Erlanger and Flo Ziegfeld from turning over in their graves. Those who knew the dash and Rialto flair of 42nd street 20 years ago would not know its down-at-heel and catch-penny drop today. A great street gone hunkytunk.

New York hotel owners, in letting down bars to small dogs, say they have suffered no damage losses whatever and have but few minor complaints from guests. The patron with a dog, they say, is invariably well behaved and, realizing he is more or less under surveillance, is careful with his pet. Too, he is generally steady in his habits and not a carouser. A person coming to New York for a fling does not bring a dog. And it is the visiting party flinger who often not only disrupts hotel service but disturbs guests and causes property loss.

Enlightened 1937: It was interesting to watch pedestrians on the avenue near Scribner's react to a window washer's ladder leaned from the middle of the sidewalk during the rush hour the other noon. In fifteen minutes time not more than five passed under the ladder. All, gravely fearing the ancient superstition, walked around. One man reading a newspaper was just under it when he noticed his predicament, gave a little squeak and indulged one of those stooping little Bobby Clark runs around it. I noticed Guernsey Curran gave it the go by as did Vinson Freidley and Percy McCord.

I know a pulp magazine writer who for years has had but one pronounced superstition and that is having his path crossed by a black cat. He never had the experience until recently when it happened late one night by the light of the moon. He went to bed restless. In an hour his phone rang. It was unexpected good news from a London publisher. At daylight he was aroused by a night letter that a play he had almost forgotten had been accepted by a prominent producer. And when he left his apartment around noon there was the black cat sitting on an entrance step. Coaxed into the house, it has been a household pet for eight months. The "Unknown Soldier"

Known But To C Answer To All Inquiries

Veterans of Foreign Publicity, Department of COLUMBUS, April 29—ly, around Memorial day, maybe day, countless have received by the war department, Washington, concerning Unknown Soldier of the W. The text of these letters over the country is practically the same. "Will the Unknown Soldier ever be known? Will the path of America's honored man be found?"

It can be stated positively that the identity of America's Soldier will never be known. As the inscription on his tomb at Arlington Cemetery reads: "Known But To God."

When GHQ of the American Expeditionary Forces first searched for the body of a soldier to be so honored, precaution was taken that his identity should not be known.

The four major sectors of our troops participated in action "over there." Somme, the Aisne-Marne, Meuse-Argonne and the Meuse-Argonne. From an AEF cemetery of those four areas in 1915, 1921, there was the body of one unidentified soldier. The fellow about each of the four territories.

cause of death was frost action, this being frost shot wounds on the body. There was absolutely no evidence nor possible the identity of any of bodies sent, on Oct. 25, 1918, at Chateau-sur-Marne. This little city was chosen for final selection; its unknown hero had been removed from any which troops of the AEF participated in action along the front.

Selection Made
On the afternoon of Oct. 25, the final selection was made. Little improvised camp at Chateau-sur-Marne. Each had been in the shipping case in which arrived and all the been so intermingled was then no way of which cemetery each had non-commissioned officer's army. Sergeant Younger, who had been twice in action in France, the final selection. He chosen by lot. From wounded sergeants of army. This American stepped forward and spray of white roses. Frenchman who had been in battle.

The American non-com officer then stopped a few forward, before the placed in a row, and spray of roses upon one line. Immediately this coming America's Unknown Soldier, was placed in prepared casket and even its journey to homeland was begun.

Three remaining unknowns were then chosen, by picked American regulars' Unknown Soldier buried and so honored.

MAYORS ADMIT MORE AID IMPOSSIBLE NOW

Congress Not Expected To Exceed Billion and Half Recommended by Roosevelt.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 29.—Officials of the United States conference of mayors, which has advocated increased federal relief spending, conceded today that congress would not exceed the $1,600,000,000 fund suggested by President Roosevelt.

"The group, which had asked a federal expenditure of $2,200,000,000, declared the smaller sum would last only from July until February unless works progress administration policy is revised."

If the policy is changed, the mayors said, "a lot more employable are going to be dumped back on cities and states."

In the halls of congress, there was talk of a compromise with the "economy bloc" by cutting $300,000,000 from the President's relief estimate. Sen. Byrnes, Democrat of South Carolina, and others have demanded that relief funds be reduced to an even billion dollars.

The relief appropriation was only one phase of general economy debate. Speaker Bankhead said Mr. Roosevelt had approved a suggestion for impounding 10 per cent of all appropriations for next year, to be used only when the President found need for it.

SLAPNICKA RESENTS CRITICISM OF FELLER

Tells Frick To Confine His Remarks To National League Players.

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, April 29.—Remarks of National League President Frick to Cleveland Indians' pitcher Slapnicka, who pitched wonder, needs a lot of coaching and development before he can become a consistent major league winner drew a pointed reply today from a Cleveland official.

"I believe it might be well for Mr. Frick to confine his analysis of players to his own league," declared C. C. Slapnicka, the American league club's vice president.

Frick was quoted saying in Buffalo that Slapnicka, who equalled the all-time major league strikeout mark of 17 while winning five and losing three games last season, "should spend some time in the minor leagues"—a statement which Frick denied.

Slapnicka suggested today that Frick send "The New York Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals to the minors for a little seasoning."

"Frick demonstrated this spring that he could take care of the Giants quite easily," Slapnicka said.

"Last year he struck out eight Cardinals in three innings, which would indicate that the Cardinals need some more minor league experience."

Frick said Feller is "a great prospect but he's as wild as a hawk and has a lot of pitching defects that only experience will iron out. He's got a jerky delivery and he must learn to get his body behind the pitch."

Cleveland baseball fans were quick to declare that Feller's windup—and not his delivery—was "jerky."

Posse Captures Dogs After Hunt In 3 Counties

Wardens and Farmers Chase Three Sheep Killers Two Days.

A posse chase over parts of three counties for sheep killing dogs and the firing of a Marion county man for failure to purchase a license for his pet were reported today as latest developments in the official campaign against dog raids in sheep flocks and enforcement of the dog licensing law.

Three dogs were captured in a two-day hunt ended yesterday by break up a group of dogs that had been making heavy inroads in flocks in southeastern Marion county, northern Delaware county and southwestern Morrow county. Elmer Olson, county dog warden reported.

The chase, in which Olson, Warden Morgan Hanzel of Delaware county, and half a dozen volunteer farmers took part, lasted several hours Tuesday afternoon with two dogs captured and ended yesterday with the capture of a third. Olson said another dog is sought.

This action followed the filing of a number of claims from southeastern Marion county including a $103 claim by Grover C. Snyder and a $12 claim by George Smith.

Two of the three dogs taken were licensed. Two were bulldogs and one a shepherd. One was owned in Delaware county, the other two in Morrow county.

Another development reported by the warden was the firing of Thomas Kraus of south of Waldo in the court of Justice of the Peace Melvin Sline at Waldo yesterday for failure to obtain a license for a dog. Kraus was fined $10 and assessed $4 costs. Two dollars of the fine was remitted and Kraus purchased a $2 license for the dog.

ABDOMINAL AILMENT LINKED TO EMOTION

By The Associated Press
DAYTON, O., April 29.—Told by Dr. Walter C. Alvarez of Rochester, Minn., that emotional disturbances often are responsible for abdominal complaints, members of the Ohio State Medical association swung into concluding sessions of a two-day convention today.

Staff-member of the Mayo clinic, Dr. Alvarez urged that more care be exercised in the diagnosis of gastro-intestinal disorders and that complete histories of patients be obtained before treatment is begun.

Emotional disturbances behind many complaints, he added, are such as to make surgery useless.

Story of "Numbers Racket" Raid

may to arrest an occasional writer as he made his rounds. But this, he said, would do little to break up the racket.

Not Entirely Stopped

Numbers were still being written in Marion today, reports from various sources said. It was believed, however, that the activities were those of another "house" which is reported to have been active on a comparatively small scale for several months.

Working on the raid in addition to Chief Marks were Captains Ora DeWees and E. C. Macken and Patrolmen Stuart Underhill, Osmun, Yokum, Andrew C. Cunningham, Norton and Kirtz. Several of the men are on the night shift and were called in for special duty. The men who occupied the Welchold house are Marks, DeWees, Smith, Underhill and Osmun.

Check Up Receipts

Police last night spent more than an hour counting the receipts turned in at the Park boulevard house. The total "take" as the alleged writers made their payments in the basement of the Welchold house at the request of officers was $297.55. Some of the money was in five and one dollar bills but a large part was in coin.

Police Chief Marks expressed the belief today that only a small per cent of the total day's receipts had been obtained in the raid. Records found at the Welchold house indicated, he said, that the average day's "take" was from $700 to $900. That the operators were aware of the possibility of the raid, following the Kentucky club visit, last Saturday, and had arranged for some writers to pay in at some other place was a view expressed by police. At least they are convinced that the day's receipts taken at the Welchold house was far below average.

Some of the alleged writers, Chief Marks said, had only the stubs from the number books and no money. This also led the officers to believe that pay-ins had been arranged for some other place.

One bag of money taken by police contained $112.71 entirely in coins. It contained $26 in nickels, $18 in dimes, $22.50 in quarters, $3 in pennies, $10 in half dollars with $1.21 left in assorted coins after the remainder had been placed in coin wrappers.

Estimate Indefinite

Police have not yet today been able to arrive at any accurate estimate of the number of persons who played the numbers daily, although they are of the belief that it would reach into the thousands. Nor do they know definitely how many writers are active in Marion. In some circles, however, this number has been placed at between 60 and 75. Only a few of these, however, were in the habit of making their payments at "headquarters," Chief Marks said. The general practice, he said, was for a few writers to collect the stubs and money from several others.

Evidence of this practice was found in one pay-in envelope containing stubs and money which the police found. In the envelope was a note saying, "Send up 50 books with the big boss." The note was signed by the writer.

Chief Marks said evidence had been found that the writers here were operating in cities and towns in this immediate vicinity. Among these are Richwood, Waldo, Delaware, Marysville, Gallon, Mt. Gillette and Bucyrus. Delaware, police said, is a particularly active spot for number writers with Marion and Columbus interests both working there.

After counting the money taken at the Park boulevard house the police last night waited until a later time to go through the large mass of material, including reports, printed forms, and other equipment found.

"Red Book" Found

One little red book, however, came to the attention of police last night. It contained what they believed to be a record of the business for several days. But whether it showed the entire volume or only a portion of it police were unable to say.

For example the book showed that on April 14 the receipts were $705.32. The "bits" were shown as $390.50, leaving what was designated as "win" at $404.82. On the following day the receipts were shown as $307.43 but the bits went up to $734.75 leaving the day's "win" at only $37.07.

If this was discouraging the business on April 16 really was a heart breaker, for the receipts were shown as $902.48 and the "bits" at $2,106, leaving a loss for the day of $1,203.52.

On the next day, the 17th and the last recorded in the book, the figures went back into the "win" column with receipts of $908.53 and "bit" of $824, leaving a balance of $284.53.

Running Over Two Years

The raid brought a sudden interruption to operations of the "numbers racket" which has been flourishing here without hindrance for two years or more.

The gambling game first came to Marion as part of a wave that has swept the nation from coast to coast. Persons who have watched its growth and have "played the numbers" say there isn't a city of any size in the country and few smaller communities that haven't been invaded by the "writers."

The "racket" differs from the usual gambling game in that it doesn't draw its customers principally from habits of the gambling habit, the poker games, the dice tables and race tracks, but from virtually every walk of life.

It is a game that appeals to the inherent gambling spirit in most people and finds its patrons in housewives and business women, shop girls and store clerks, laborers and professional men, business men, the boys who shine your shoes and all your roadside tank.

"Business" Suffered

Two factors that probably contributed more largely than any other to the success in the past of the numbers racket was the fact that it can be played for as low as one cent and because the "writers" go to the customers. It isn't necessary as in race betting or other forms of gambling for the "customer" to seek out the game—in the numbers racket the game seeks out the customers.

In Marion as in other cities the writers cover their territory every morning and their day's business is limited only by the number of customers they can develop and the number of people they can see in a given time. Those who are acquainted with the game say that every day the writers can be seen making their rounds of stores, private and public offices, gas stations and every place where a potential customer might be found.

In some cases it even has been reported that writers followed the house to house solicitation plan in the residential districts to bring the numbers game to the housewife who wandered from a penny up. Nor have the school children, it is a known fact that numbers have been written among children in the schools here.

Frightened by "Bees"

One rather amusing and enlightening incident so far as knowledge of the extent of the operations of the racket are concerned, arose here recently when the grandfather of a junior high school boy found a booklet, purporting to contain numbers that are certain to come up, in his grandson's possession.

Asked about the book the grandson said he and several other boys had "chipped" together to buy it. The boys were doing pretty well, he admitted, until they decided to "get out of the game because somebody was going to put the bee on us." Just what the "bee" was the grandfather was not able to determine but he assumed that some one had thrown a scare into the youngsters.

The youthful "syndicate" was about 11 ahead when they decided to quit; so they split the money and spent it "before they got us with the dough on us," the boy further informed his grandfather.

Popular Topic

The numbers game has become almost a national mania. "What number came up today?" "Here's a 'hot number' that is sure to hit." These are some of the expressions of the game that can be heard almost on every side. In fact the numbers had fair to replace the weather as the great American subject of conversation.

Some who play regularly have developed what they believe is a scientific way to forecast the winning numbers, but just how their "system" operates is probably understood to no one but themselves. Others keep records of winning numbers and can tell at a moment's notice what the winner was on any date in the past.

The fortune tellers too, it is reliably reported, have gained from the numbers game—not entirely from playing it themselves but principally through predicting for a fee for others what numbers are to come up.

Other enterprising persons have joined in the harvest of pennies, nickels and dimes, by putting out sale booklets with large combinations of numbers from which the buyer of the book can select any number he thinks is likely to come up.

Another "tip book" is the name book. It lists given names by the hundreds and with each is a corresponding number. If the numbers of a customer who uses the book by some chance thinks of the name Mabel, Johnny, Susan or some other, he immediately refers to the book and plays the number corresponding to the name Mabel, Johnny or Susan.

Still another popular method of determining the lucky number is to dream it. If in a player's dreams should come the number 202 he certainly would "get on it" the next morning with all the love change he had in his pocket. The dream system is considered by many to be just about good. Some persons even have been known to go to the extent of gorging themselves with food before going to bed to assure a dreamer's field day, or night, which might, however, turn into a nightmare if the supposedly lucky numbers fail to come up.

In short the numbers game has brought many persons to the place where they eat, sleep, dream, talk and live numbers in the hope they might share in the $90 to one odds paid on a 100 to one chance of winning.

"Writing" Profitable

Whether the numbers racket has benefited the customer is a matter that can be determined solely by the success of the player in each individual case. But the writers apparently are not doing so bad. Some here are reported to have quit regular jobs to give all their time to helping customers guess the stock and bond sales.

One incident related here not long ago concerned a former waitress in a Marion restaurant. After working here for a while she went to Columbus some time later she returned to visit her former friends in the eating house. When the friends inquired, "Where are you working now," the answer was, "Oh, I'm not working. I'm writing numbers and I'm making more money than I ever did waiting tables."

ponent of the repression style of acting. He abolished the strut and stride. He substituted naturalism for the so-called "great style of acting," and his technique had a marked influence upon the profession.

While "Sherlock Holmes" is definitely the number one play of William Gillette's career, second place belongs, perhaps, to his "Secret Service," the stirring fable of Civil war days in which the telegraph room was one of the talked-about scenes of the drama of the nineties.

Other important Gillette plays were "Held by the Enemy," "Too Much Johnson," and "Clarice," all of which he wrote, and "The Admirable Crichton," "A Successful Calamity," and "Dear Brutus," which was beautifully acted by him and Helen Hayes at the Empire in New York.

BRITISH DENY PLANS TO EVACUATE BILBAO

Spanish Refugees Must Agree Before Action Is Taken Foreign Office Says.

By The Associated Press
LONDON, April 29.—The British foreign office turned a deaf ear today to reports that the British navy is about to evacuate thousands of refugees from the beleaguered Bilbao, Spain.

Spokesmen said "the government is always ready to assist humanitarian endeavor, but it is not ready to agree to evacuation of Bilbao refugees and their families for to agree on evacuation."

"The British government will decide how it can help."

The spokesman said decisions by some parliamentarians to force the foreign office have given rise to immediate examination of the protection of British warships apparently were based on a misunderstanding, but they left the way open for ultimate government assistance.

A member of the national committee for Spanish relief, to which the parliamentary group asked itself, was flying to Bilbao to arrange first for removal of the 600 children to temporary homes in Great Britain, France, Scandinavia and other countries.

Boyish Attorney Center of Ohio's Budget Battle

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., April 29.—A boyish appearing attorney, holding his first public office, found himself today in the center of the worst maelstrom stirred up in the current session of the legislature.

He is Sen. Horace W. Baggott of Dayton, leader of the minority tax bloc which is trying to cut an estimated $16,000,000 from 1933-38 governmental operating expenses.

His unprecedented action in causing the senate to reject the regular biennial appropriation bill in preference to an economy substitute has thrown perhaps the most consternation into the administration of Gov. Martin L. Davey that it has experienced in many months.

His arrival in the senate chamber caused a rush of public officials to his side, many of whom seeking changes in the budget slashing bill.

Sen. Baggott, who is 31 years old and a Democrat, won election as soon as he came to the senate in January. Scholarly, extroverted and an able speaker and debater, he worked hard and sought quickly to master the details of his senatorial duties.

In recognition of his ability, senate leaders appointed the somewhat diminutive senator, who appears with his books to be a college student than a law man, to the finance, judiciary and education committees.

As a member of the first committee, it was his job to bring upon the $59,000,000 biennial appropriation bill. He discovered that some departments were asking more funds than he thought the legislature would grant.

So with other members of the senate who believed that the budget could be avoided by paying out expenditures, he set out to find a substitute. The work took more than four weeks.

Baggott had the counsel of Gov. Paul F. Yoder, who has his district and has been a close friend for nearly nine years. Yoder, who helped Baggott through the election campaign, is a son of former Gov. Charles F. Smith and a former judge of the Ohio supreme court.

He attended Ohio State university and took great interest in political science as well as law, and was graduated from the university law school in 1929.

Sen. Baggott is married and has two sons.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

It was a wild stormy night when the beautiful moon was shining brightly in the sky. The wind was howling and the rain was falling fast. A man was walking alone on a path that led to a bluff. He was looking down at the ground as he walked. He was a man of about thirty years of age. He was wearing a dark coat and a hat. He was walking slowly and carefully. He was looking at the ground as he walked. He was a man of about thirty years of age. He was wearing a dark coat and a hat. He was walking slowly and carefully. The Stars Say—

For Friday April 30

AN EVENTFUL day and a memorable one although not entirely as expected or planned is seen from the rather conflicting passages with hint of some dubious or distressing experiences. A heretofore death of profound sorrow seems to be at the source of much concern and disappointment or the post-mortem of cherished projects.

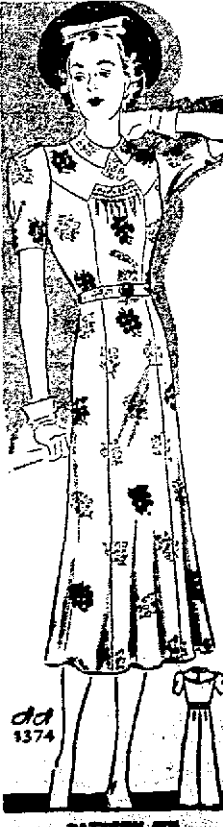

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of unforeseen and rapid change with fresh contacts and interests and distant affairs probably with many change persons and adventures transpiring in the affairs.

A child born on this day may be the studious and contemplative although fond of change, learning and sturdy enterprising personal ambitions.

DREAM COMES TRUE

INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE—A dream which was dreamed in the village of Muenster, in the province of Pomerania, turned into reality and led to agreement. The boy, the 12-year-old of a local shoemaker, was playing in a forest when he saw a man's dead body of a farm owner hanging from a tall pine.

The government will conduct a survey from Nanking to the way of Fukien province. It is not a single mile of the province in China, containing important cities.
